

WINDON MEMORIAL CLASSIC

One of Northwestern's proud golf traditions is its hosting of The Windon Memorial Golf Classic.

The tourney is named after the late Bernie Windon, former vice-president of Ameritech, who spearheaded the effort to bring major collegiate golf to the Chicagoland area.

The Windon Memorial has been held 14 times since 1993.

The first tournament, known then as the Quintessence Classic, was contested in the fall of 1993 at Kemper Lakes and Royal Melbourne Golf Courses. Kent State won the team title while Stanford's Casey Martin took home individual titleist honors.

That December, Mr. Windon passed away. Shortly thereafter, the tournament was renamed the Windon Memorial Classic and, to keep Mr.

Windon's "quintessential" spirit alive, tournament participants compete for the Quintessence Trophy.

In 1994, Texas A&M and Minnesota were crowned co-champs while Texas A&M's Anthony Rodriguez was the individual champ. In 1995, the Florida Gators won the team title and Florida's Josh McCumber edged Stanford's Tiger Woods by two strokes for the individual crown.

The Windon Memorial Classic was not held in 1996 or 1997 as NU hosted the 1996 Ping! Golfweek Preview and the 1997 NCAA Championships.

The field for the 1998 Windon Memorial Classic featured six teams ranked in the top-25

NU captured its third Windon Classic crown in 2007, marking the third time in six years Northwestern won the tournament title. Pictured with the 'CATS is HOLLY WINDON-STARCK.

including Texas, Florida, Stanford and Minnesota. The Gophers won their second Windon by taking the 1998 crown, holding off NU by three strokes.

The 1999 Windon Memorial Classic was played at Conway Farms Golf Club in Lake Forest, Ill. It again had a stellar field, with five teams ranked in the top 25. NU's Luke Donald was the individual champion, firing a 4-under-par, 209.

The Oklahoma Sooners shot a 4-over-par 868 to win the 2000 Windon Memorial championship at The Knollwood Club in Lake Forest, Ill. Hunter Mahan of USC took home medalist honors as he finished the 54-hole tournament with scores of 72-68-73=213.

In 2002, Northwestern ran away with the Windon championship, defeating second-place Duke by 25 strokes at the Glen View Club in Glenview, Ill. NU shattered the record for lowest winning team score (848) for 54 holes by 20 strokes. The previous record (868) was set by Oklahoma in 2000.

Tom Johnson won in 2002 for his first-collegiate win, shooting a tournament-record final-round 66 on his way to a tournament-record total of 206. Those marks were shattered in 2008 by Indiana's Jorge Campillo, whose 8-under 63 in the final round gave him a winning total of 8-under 205.

In 2004, the Windon returned to Conway Farms and the Wildcats used a balanced team effort to take their second Windon crown. Purdue's Peter Richardson became the first player in tournament history to capture multiple and consecutive individual titles.

The 10th edition of the Windon Classic, held in 2006 for the first time at the Skokie Country Club, witnessed a new team champion, SMU. SMU's Colt Knost also claimed the individual title, posting a 2-under 211.

NU won its third Windon title in six tries in 2007 when it came from behind to top Kent State by a stroke at Lake Shore Country Club.

Illinois captured the 2008 and 2009 Windons held at North Shore Country Club and Skokie Country Club, respectively. A Big Ten team won for the fourth-straight year in 2010 when Michigan's Lion Kim earned medalist honors and sank a 40-foot putt on No. 18 to give the Wolverines a one-shot victory at North Shore.

2010-11 SEASON RECAP

Northwestern advanced to the NCAA National Championships for the seventh time under 15th-year head coach Pat Goss, finished 22nd in the country after a second-place effort at the 2011 Big Ten Championships.

The Wildcats season began with a strong fall campaign, but the squad really put its mark on the year beginning with the first tournament of the spring. At the Big Ten Match Championship in February, Northwestern defended its title at the event with a perfect 3-0 run through the bracket as the No. 4 seed. NU knocked off No. 1 seed Illinois via a tiebreak in the semifinals before defeating Indiana, 4-2, in the championship match.

Northwestern scuffled in its next handful of tourneys, but got on track with a third-place finish at the Illini Spring Classic leading up the Big Ten Championships. There, the Wildcats put a huge final-round charge with 7-under 281 to jump up to second place. Qualifying into the field of the NCAA Colorado Regional, Northwestern made an even bigger charge at that event. Entering the final day in eighth place, NU fired the best round of the entire tournament with a 12-under 276 to leap all the way into third place and a berth at the 2011 NCAA National Championships.

Senior David Lipsky won an individual title at the UNC Greensboro Bridgestone Golf Collegiate en route to All-Big Ten and GCAA PING All-America honorable mention selections. Junior Eric Chun also was named GCAA PING All-Region.

Senior DAVID LIPSKY (right) finished his career with a 72.97 stroke average, the fourth-best in program history. Junior ERIC CHUN (left) earned GCAA PING All-Region honors in 2010-11, finishing the season ranked second on the team with a 73.25 stroke average.
